

CRUSH THE ENEMY WITHIN AND WITHOUT

“SALIFU MADE A MONUMENT FOR HIMSELF WITH LOYAL SERVICE”

THE Revolutionary Convention People's Party battle songs re-echoed at the Press Club last night as Ghanaians marked Osagyefo's conquest over an assassin.

Party Members including members of the Association of Ghanaian Journalists and Writers decided at a vigil here last night to crush the enemy within and without and to ensure total safety of the Leader.

Addressing the gathering, Defence Minister Kofi Baako announced that Osagyefo had commanded that Salifu Dagarti, who died in hospital after being hit by the killer's bullet yesterday should be given a State burial.

Mr Baako said Salifu had made a monument for himself through loyal service and the manner which he died. Even in danger, the Minister said, he fought to keep his Leader out of danger.

The Minister after demonstrating how Osagyefo overpowered the assassin, said the way the Leader did it was a demonstration of his spiritual, moral, physical and ideological strength.

A minute silence was observed in memory of Salifu, the gallant martyr. Mr Baako said the people of Ghana would show how wiser they have become by these incidents by approving overwhelmingly for the amendment to the constitution which had been proposed by the Party and Government.

He emphasised that socialism would help to keep the enemies and saboteurs at bay, "and we shall know how to deal with them".

Mr Bankole Akpata, an African nationalist from Nigeria said Dr Kwame Nkrumah meant a lot to Africa and his life was very precious.

Mr Akpata said we were all vanguard in the African liberation army and we were not isolated in our struggle for "victory is on our side".

A MINUTE SILENCE

Earlier, welcoming the people to the night of rededication, Mr T. D. Baffoe, Editor of the 'Ghanaian Times' and chairman of the Association of Ghanaian Journalists and Writers said after the enemies had failed at Kulungugu and also failed to intimidate the people by series of bomb explosions in Accra, they wanted to try again after "the Arku Korsah fiasco".

Protection But he declared that the elements which had protected Kwame Nkrumah in all these trials and tribulations would continue to guard him and the wicked machinations of the enemy would be to no avail.

He said because of correctness of the policies of Osagyefo, the people of Africa would forever unite in brotherhood and vigilance for the totality of the triumph of socialism throughout the world.

There is victory for us

A vigil was held last night at the Press Club by the Association of Ghanaian Journalists and Writers to mark the victory of the Leader over the forces of evil yesterday.

Picture (above) shows a section of the people who attended the function, singing "There is victory for us" at the junction.

Meanwhile, messages denouncing nation-wreckers and traitors and calling for eternal vigilance are pouring in at the Party Headquarters in Accra.
